Mountains – a short comprehension

Name: ........................................ Date: ..................................................

Read the following non-fiction text about mountains.

Mountains

Mountains are taller and steeper than hills. They are found all over the world and even under the sea.

Mountains are home to different types of plant, animals and even people. Some have snow on the top, known as the peak, even in summer.

Mount Everest is the world’s highest mountain above sea level. The highest mountain in Europe is Mount Elbrus, in Russia.

Now answer the following questions. Write in full sentences.

1. Name two things that live on mountains.

........................................................................................................................................
........................................................................................................................................

2. What is special about Mount Everest?

........................................................................................................................................
........................................................................................................................................

3. What is the top of the mountain called?

........................................................................................................................................
........................................................................................................................................

4. Where is the highest mountain in Europe?

........................................................................................................................................
........................................................................................................................................
Mountains – a short comprehension

Answers

1. Name two different things that live on the mountains.

   Different types of plans, animals and even people live on the mountains.

2. What is special about Mount Everest?

   Mount Everest is the world’s highest mountain above sea level.

3. What is the top of the mountain called?

   The top of the mountain is known as the peak.

4. Where is the highest mountain in Europe?

   The highest mountain in Europe is Mount Elbrus in Russia.